Detroit Country Day student serves as National Child Awareness ambassador

Detroit Country Day senior Alan Sun, 16, was selected to serve as the National Child Awareness Month Youth Ambassador.

As one of 51 Youth Ambassadors selected from a nationwide pool, Sun will receive funding and training to lead an initiative to promote youth educations (Music, Media-Smart Youth and STEM) among needy children in Michigan.

Alan's work began in September — National Child Awareness Month — when he traveled to Washington, D.C., for leadership training and meetings with members of the state's congressional delegation.

Since returning home, he plans to launch a campaign to raise awareness for some critical issues that children are facing and take action through several programs.

Sun was selected through a competitive application process and chosen based on the quality of his project proposal and its potential to create substantive, large-scale change on behalf of young people in Michigan.

Sun is the co-founder and director of the Little Stars Foundation, a 501c3 youth organization, which provides service to local children and seniors, enriching their lives through music since 2007.

He is also very passionate about sports. He is a master level, 4th Dan black belt of Taekwondo and is a member of the varsity cross country and swimming teams at his school. He also plays chess and is a state chess champion and three-time national bughouse chess champion.
